

About one approach for programming of a large volume projects

Jemal Antidze

In the report presented a new approach of a large structure algorithms' programming, which is based on a description of a project by formal grammars. Restrictions are placed on a grammar rule. Such description is traduced in a logical expression, execution of which gives the resolution of the problem. The approach is demonstrated on the example of morphological analysis of a natural language's word.