

Jemal Antidze

About One Approach on Machine Translation

In the report will be presented one approach, which supposes application of artificial neuron nets for realization of machine translation. It will be considered possibilities of the formal grammars as for words' computer analysis, as well for sentences' computer syntactic analysis. Application of the artificial neuron nets gives the perspective to resolve semantic problems of machine translation.